SCHATZ

The Oloid is a mesmerizing geometric form discovered by Paul Schatz, defined by the interplay of two perpendicular circles whose surfaces merge into a single continuous shape. When rolled, it moves in a gentle, wandering rhythm that feels almost alive, revealing its unique three-dimensional motion.

KALMAN

Tibor Kalman—known for infusing design with his liberal, humanistic worldview—created the Global Alphabet Blocks in 1991 with collaborator Scott Stowell as a playful yet pointed statement about the unity of human identity expressed through world scripts. Each block features different global alphabets, turning a familiar toy into a graphic celebration of cultural interconnectedness.

30 Alphabet Blocks · Arabic, Cyrillic, Hebrew, Hiragana (Japanese), and Latin/Roman letters.

MAN RAY

In this set, Man Ray translates traditional chess pieces into pure geometric forms abandoning all classical and figurative characteristics used to define the pieces. Instead, he composed them of pure Euclidean geometric "ideal forms" - cube, sphere, pyramid and cone. Dadaist that he was, one discordant form was interjected into the set. He based the form of the Knight on a found object in his studio, the head scroll of a violin.

TAEUBER-ARP

These candlesticks were designed in 1929 by Sophie Taeuber-Arp for her and Jean Arp's home in Meudon-Clamart in the outskirts of Paris. The simple cylindrical and orthogonal form was chosen to inspire her and her husband at home and to correspond with their own furniture designs. Made of solid beech wood, cloaked in glossy paint in four classic colors and with brass inserts. The originals can be found at the Arp foundation in Paris. Edition in collaboration with the Fondation Arp, Clamart @ 2024 and turned in the Black Forest in Germany.

BAUHAUS-ERA

In celebration of the centennial of the Bauhaus (1919 – 2019) IC Design is proud to have been able to re-edit this set of 12 turned wood Christmas ornaments. Their clean geometric forms are reminiscent of the costume designs of Oskar Schlemmer for the Triadic Ballet. Crafted in the Black Forest in Germany, to a large extent by hand. Designed in 1929/30, these ornaments are attributed to the Bauhaus architect Johannes Gabriel. The originals were found in an estate of an architect from Cologne who purchased many objects directly from the Bauhaus. Set of 12 handmade ornaments, gift boxed
